

Cyberpunk Times

An Afrofuturist neon series — 24 works, 2026

Loli Mari Montalvo · Art & Culture Lab · lolimari.com

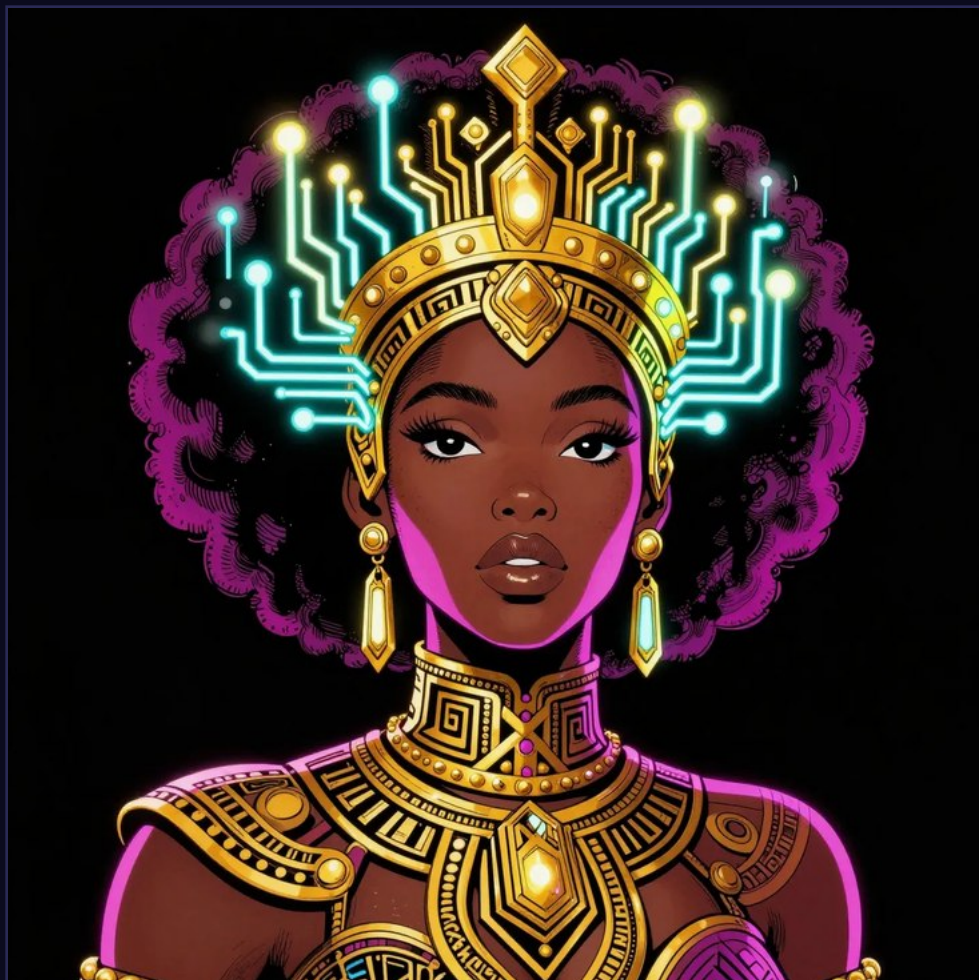

ARTIST STATEMENT

A claim on tomorrow

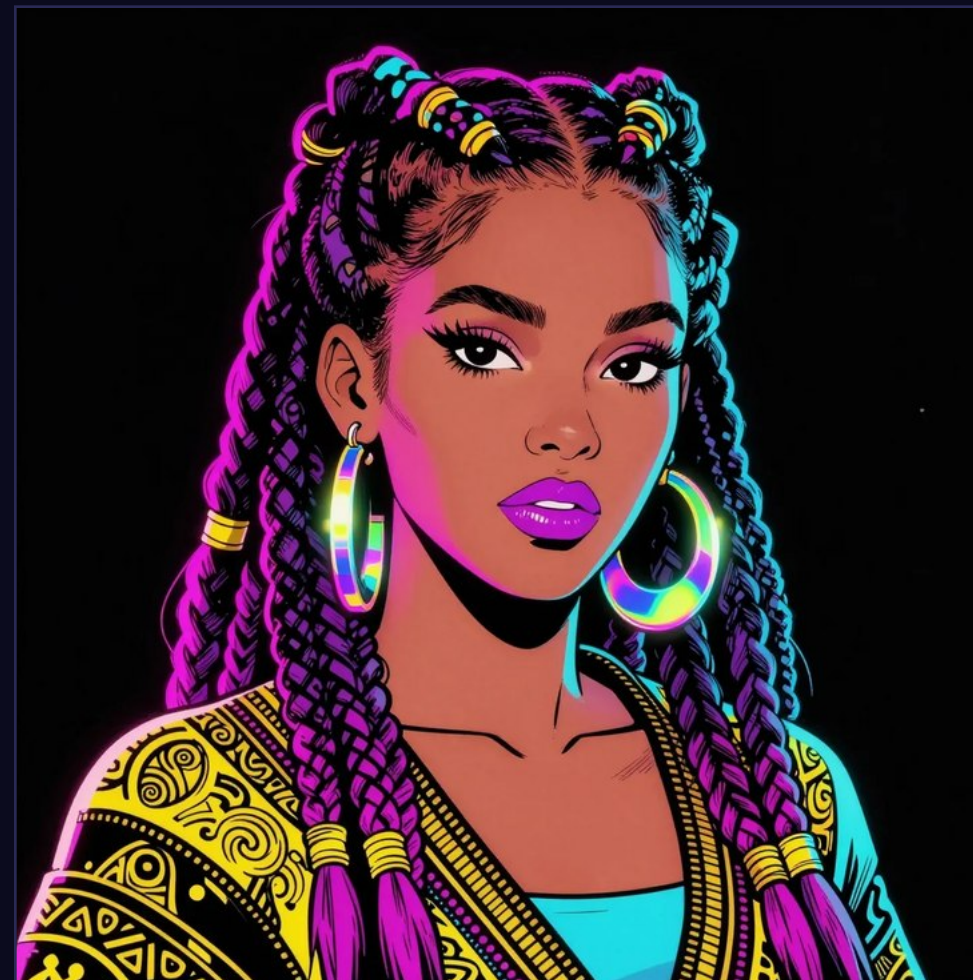

Cyberpunk Times began with an obsession with light. Digital art lets color emit instead of reflect — it glows rather than sits — and cyberpunk is the language built for that luminosity. I took that electric, after-dark palette and handed it to people who rarely get to stand at the center of the future. Each figure is a woman drawn from a different culture — Yoruba, Quechua, Korean, Amazigh, Ethiopian, Persian, and more — crowned in neon and gold, rendered in bold graphic-novel line and flat cel color. Around them I build Afrofuturist worlds: cities of domes and pyramids, night markets, cosmic goddesses with hair made of stars. This is not nostalgia for any single tradition; it is a claim on tomorrow. Heritage and high technology are not opposites — in this series they share the same glow, proof that the future is most beautiful when everyone is lit up inside it.

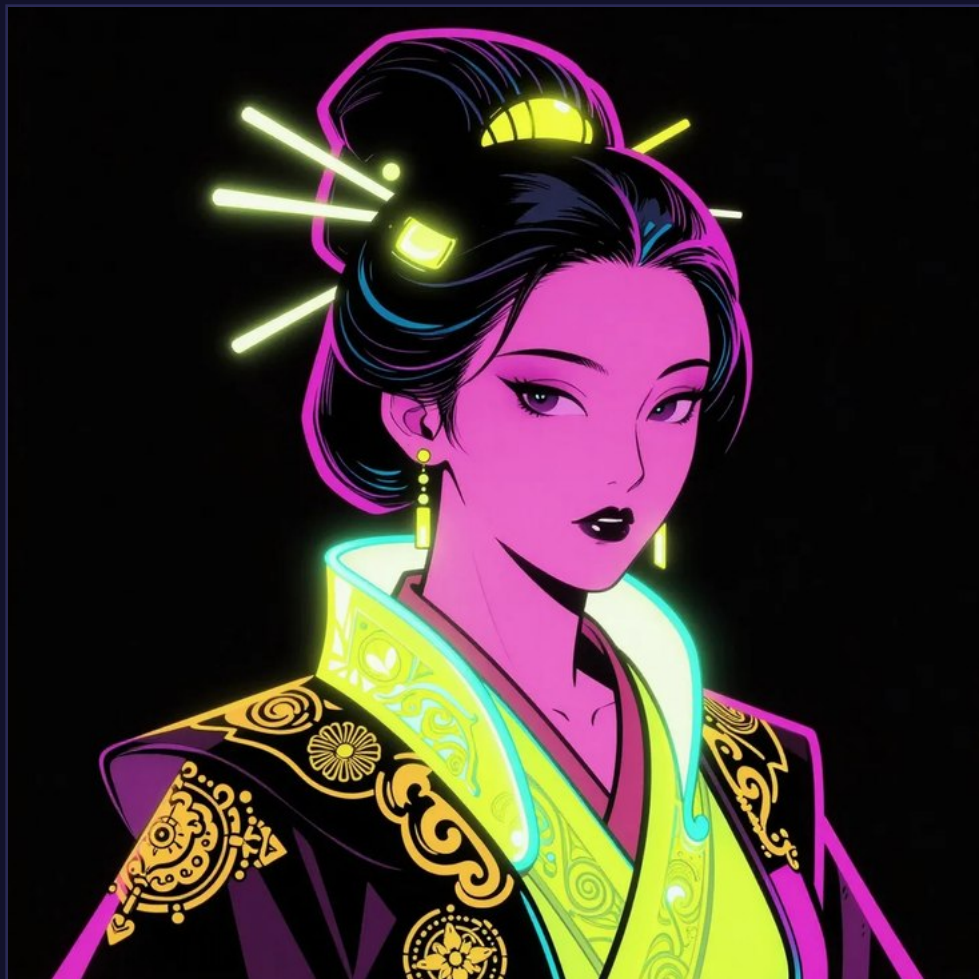

Star-Crowned

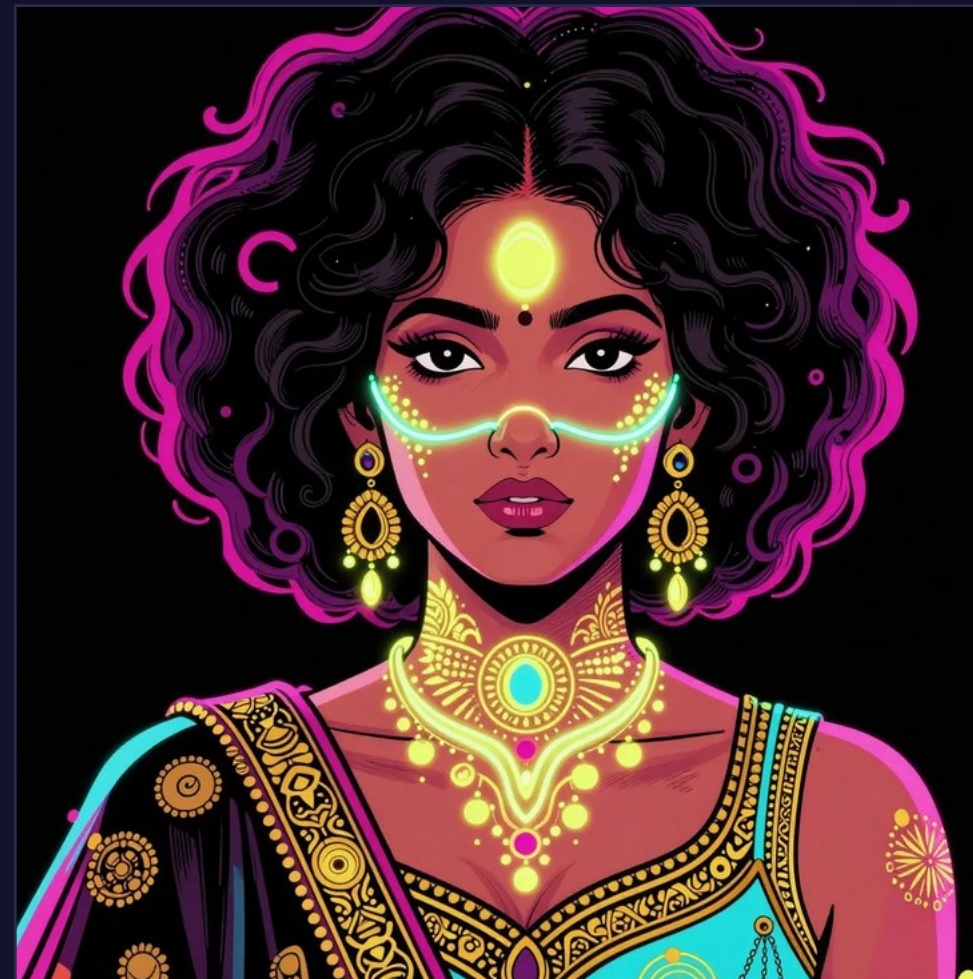

01 Gold Circuit Crown

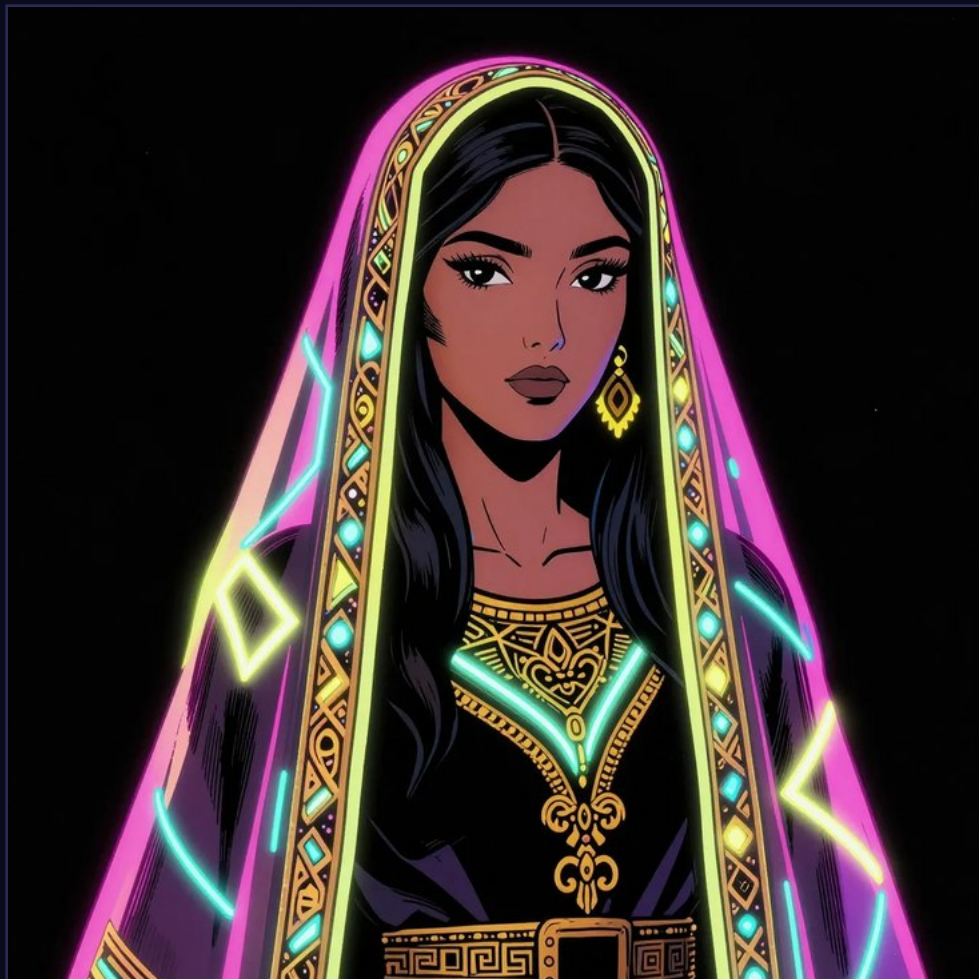

02 Neon Braids

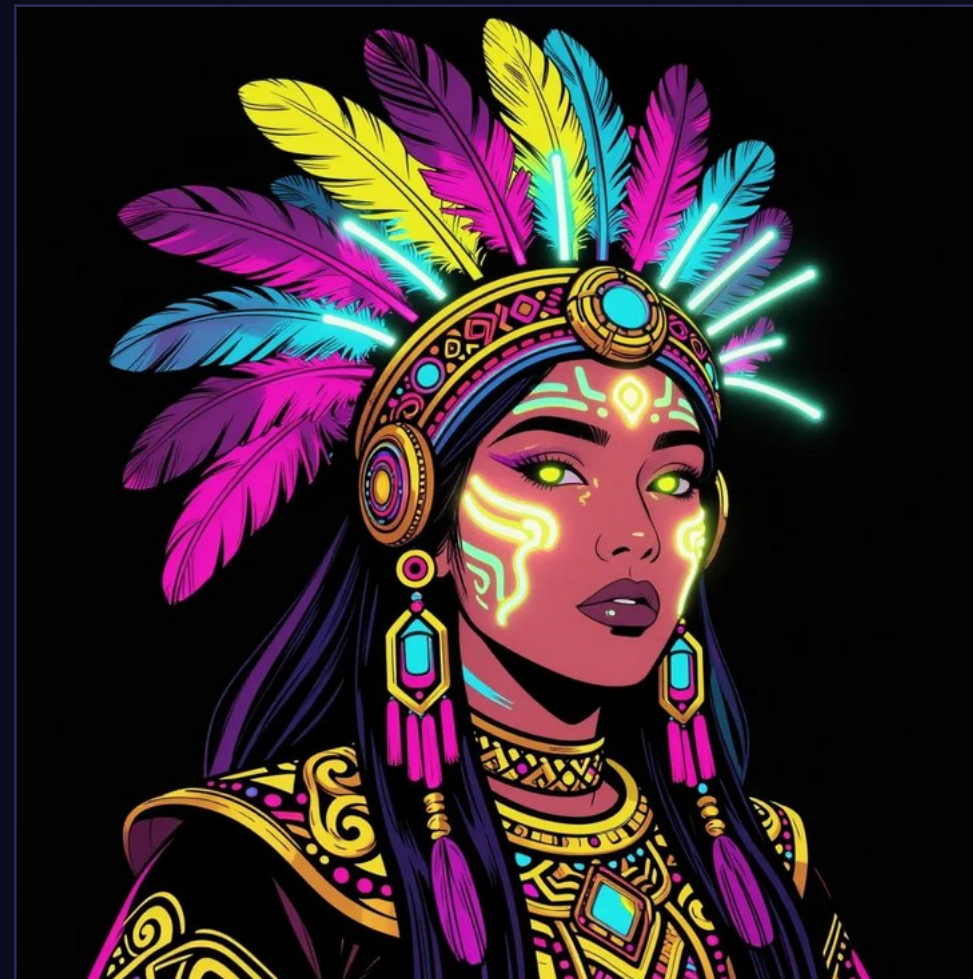

03 Cyber Hanfu

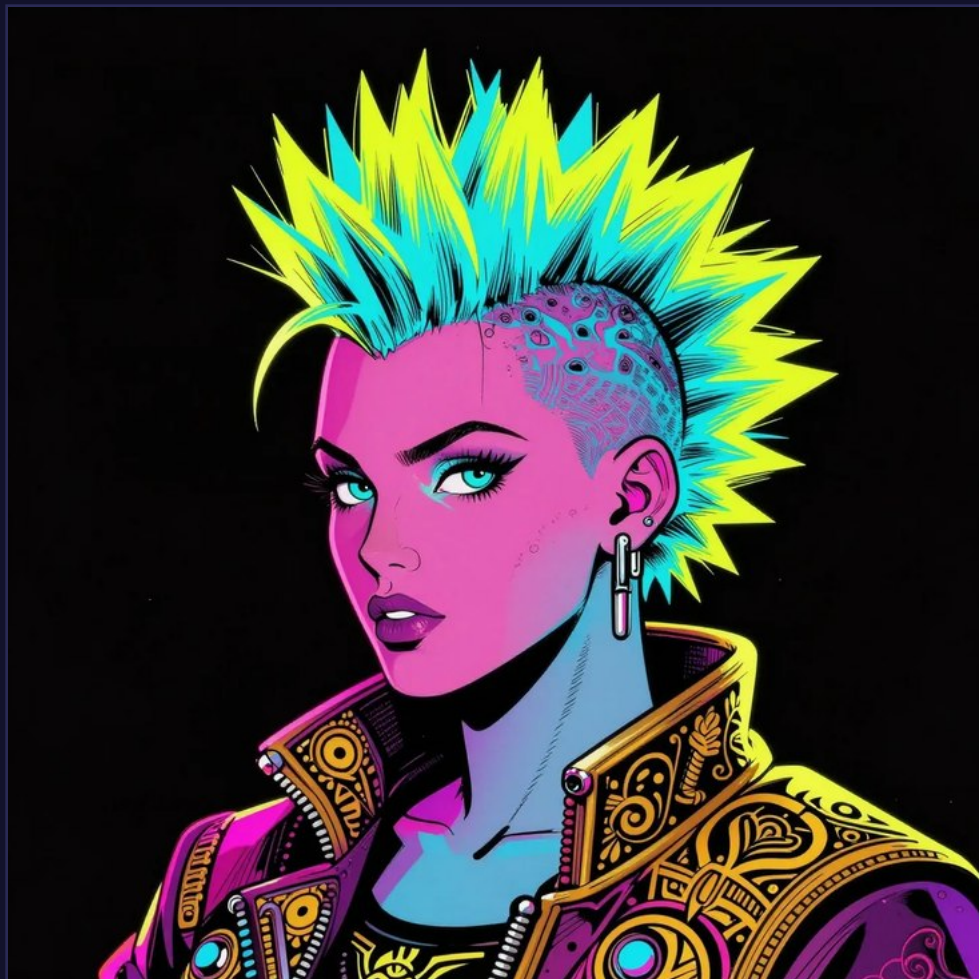

04 Luminous Henna

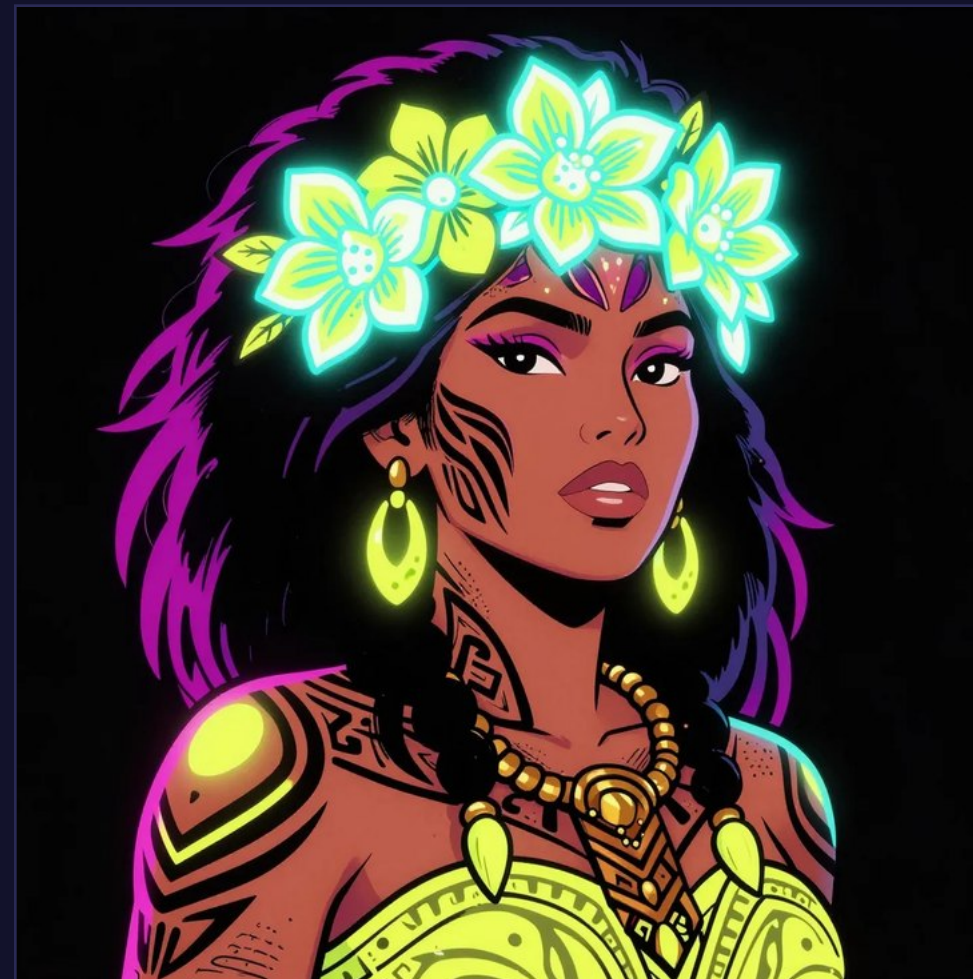

05 The Geometry Veil

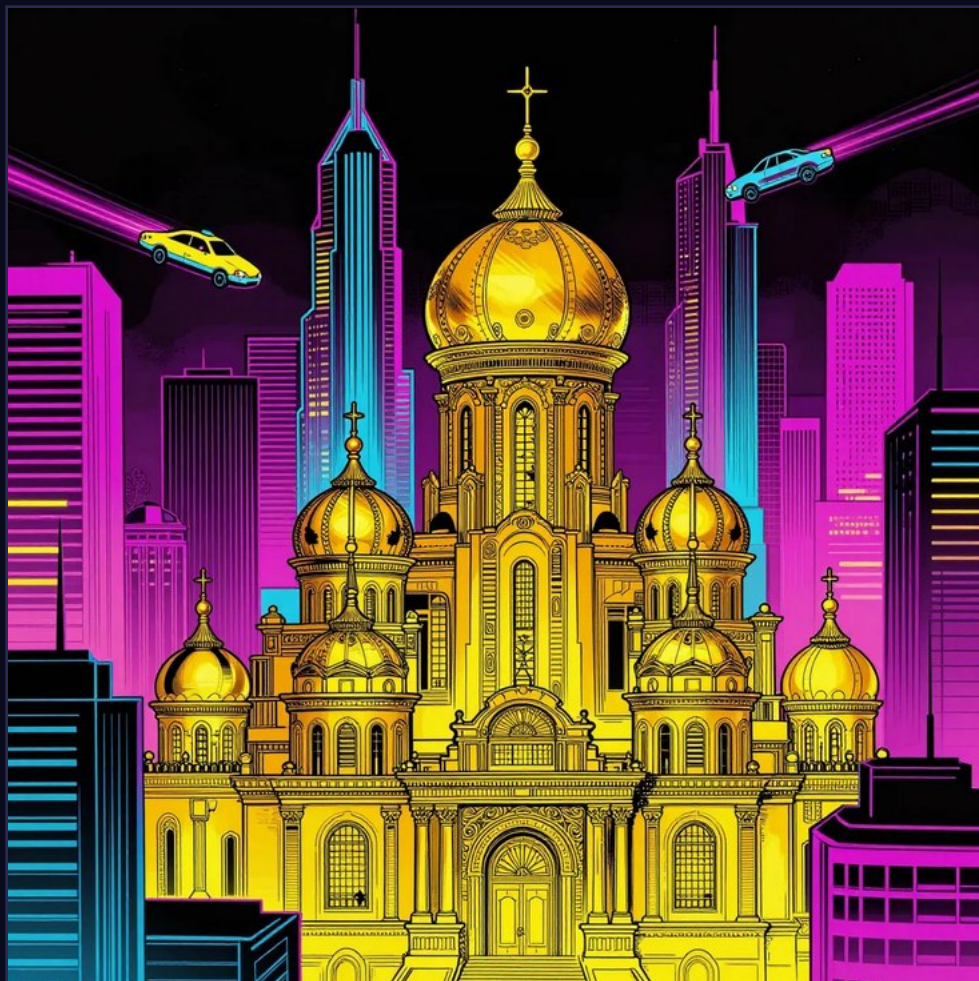

06 Fiber-Optic Feathers

07 Chrome Mohawk

08 Bloom & Ink

09 City of Gold Domes

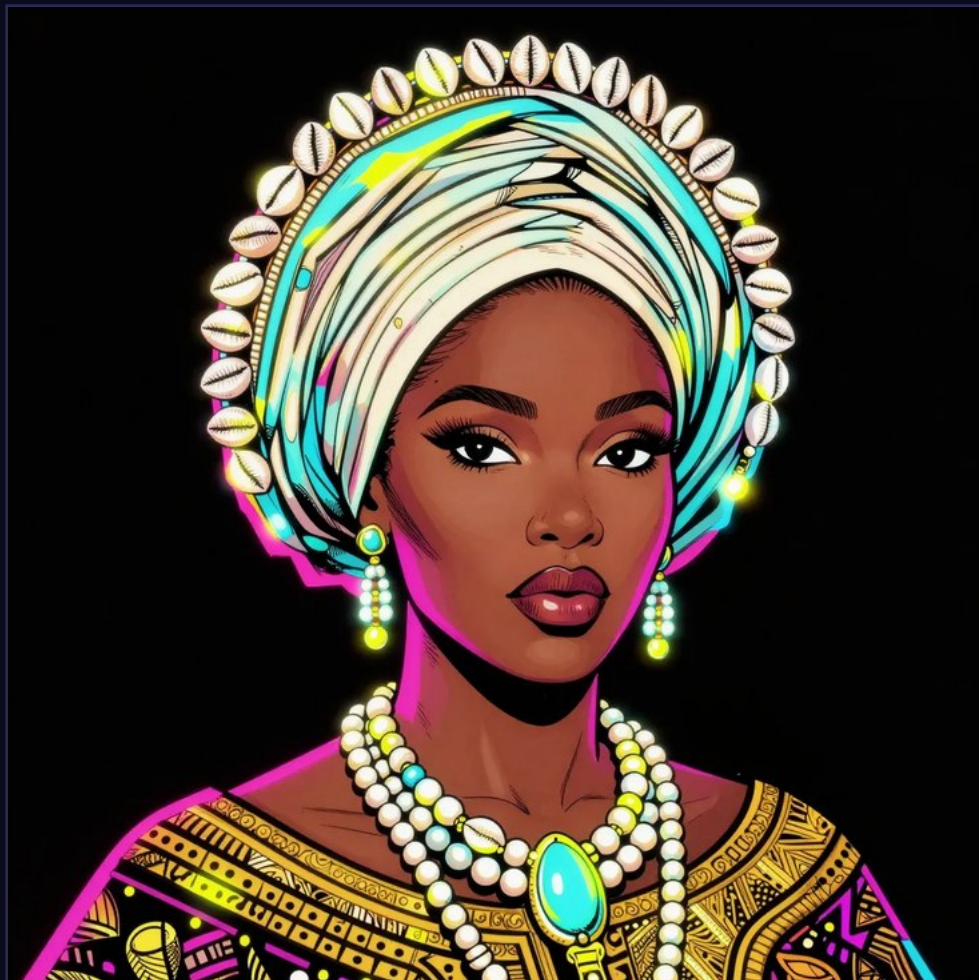

10 The Night Market

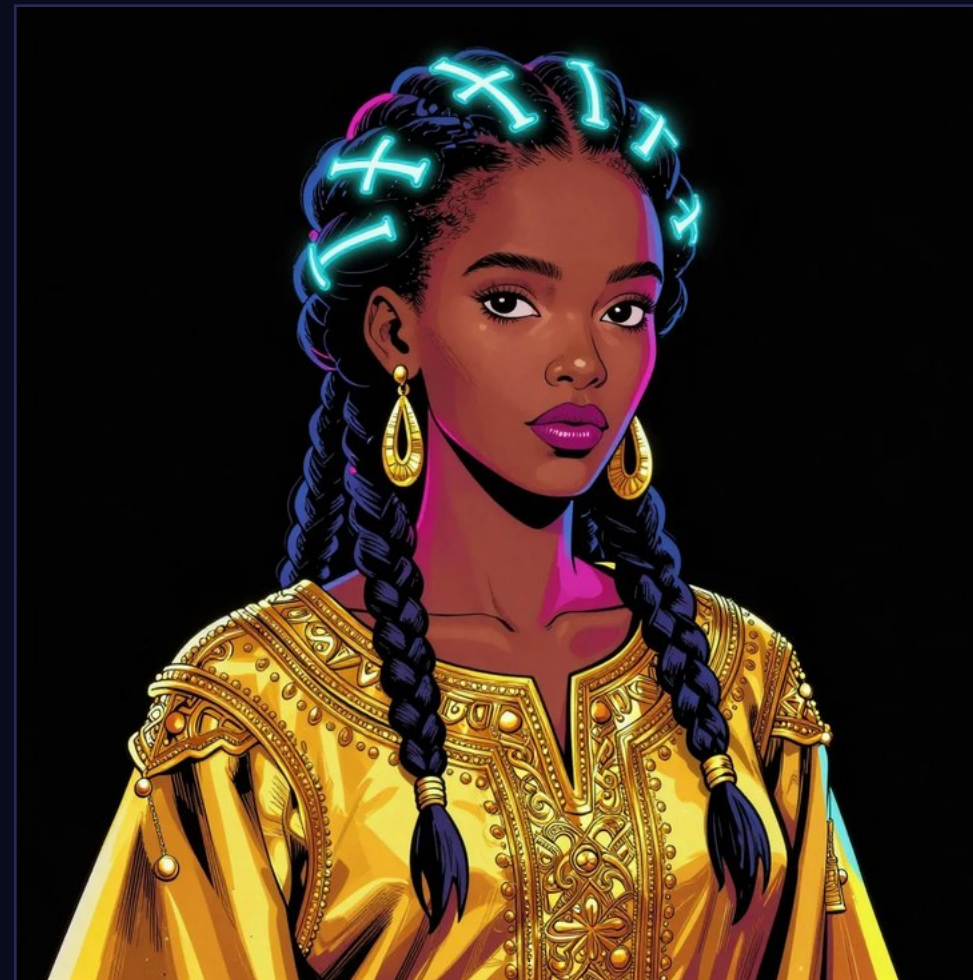

11 Star-Crowned

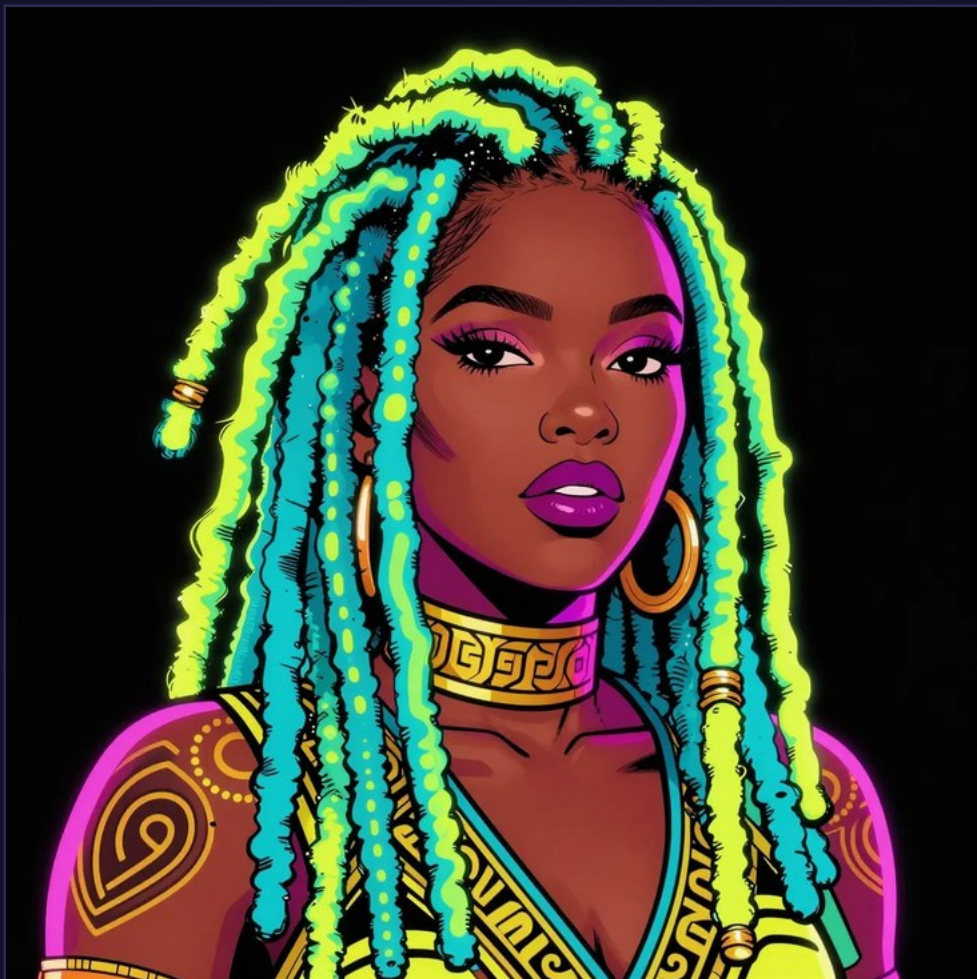

12 Pyramids & Spires

13 Cowrie Crown

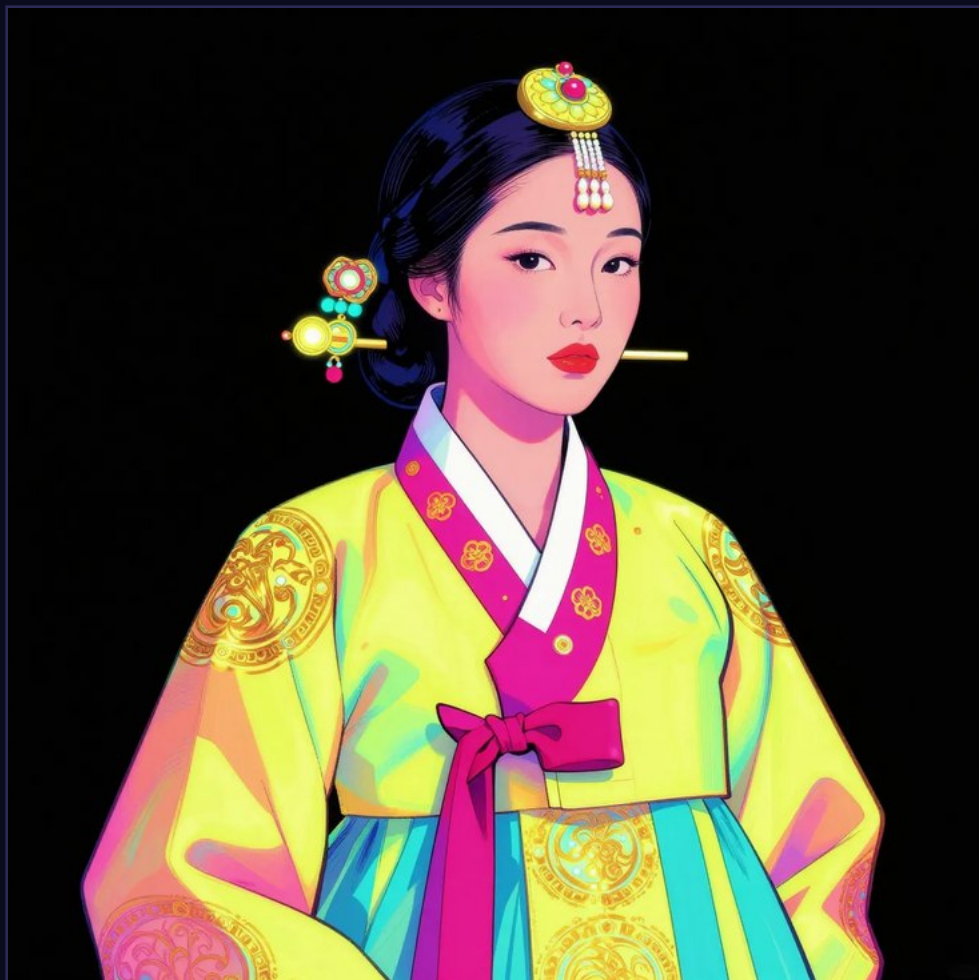

14 Cross & Gold

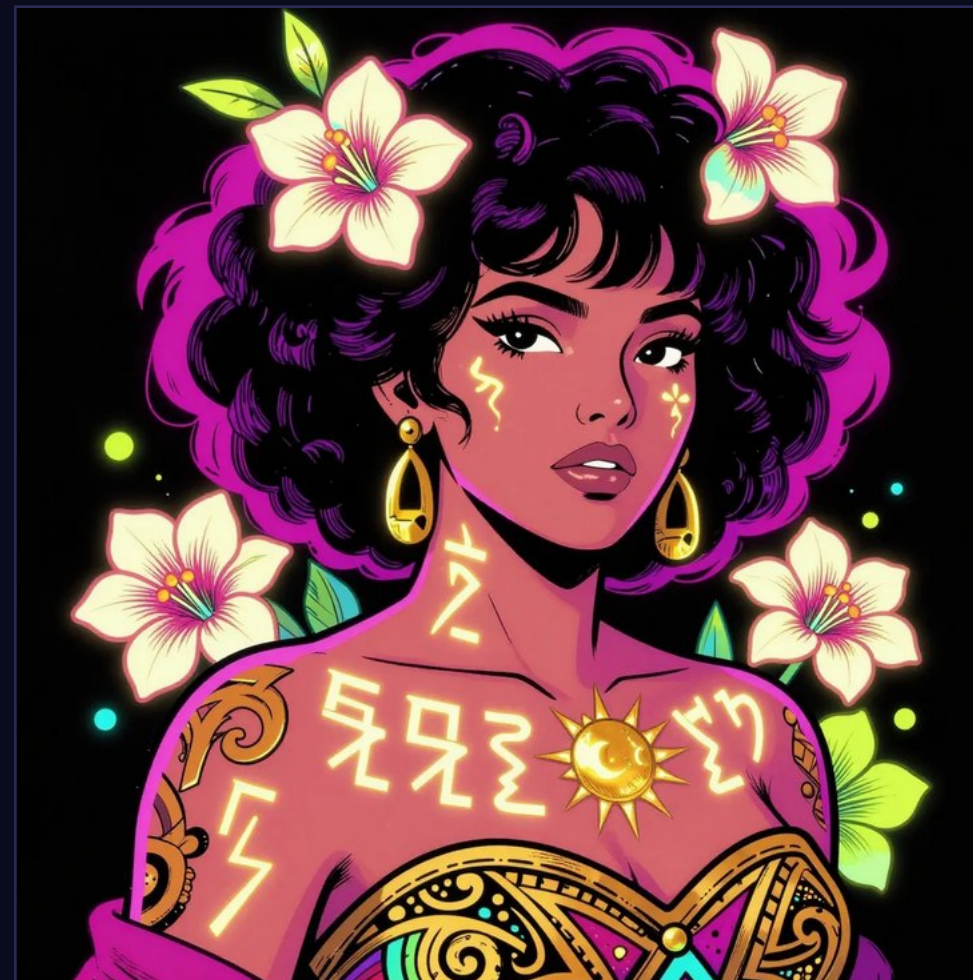

15 Neon Locs

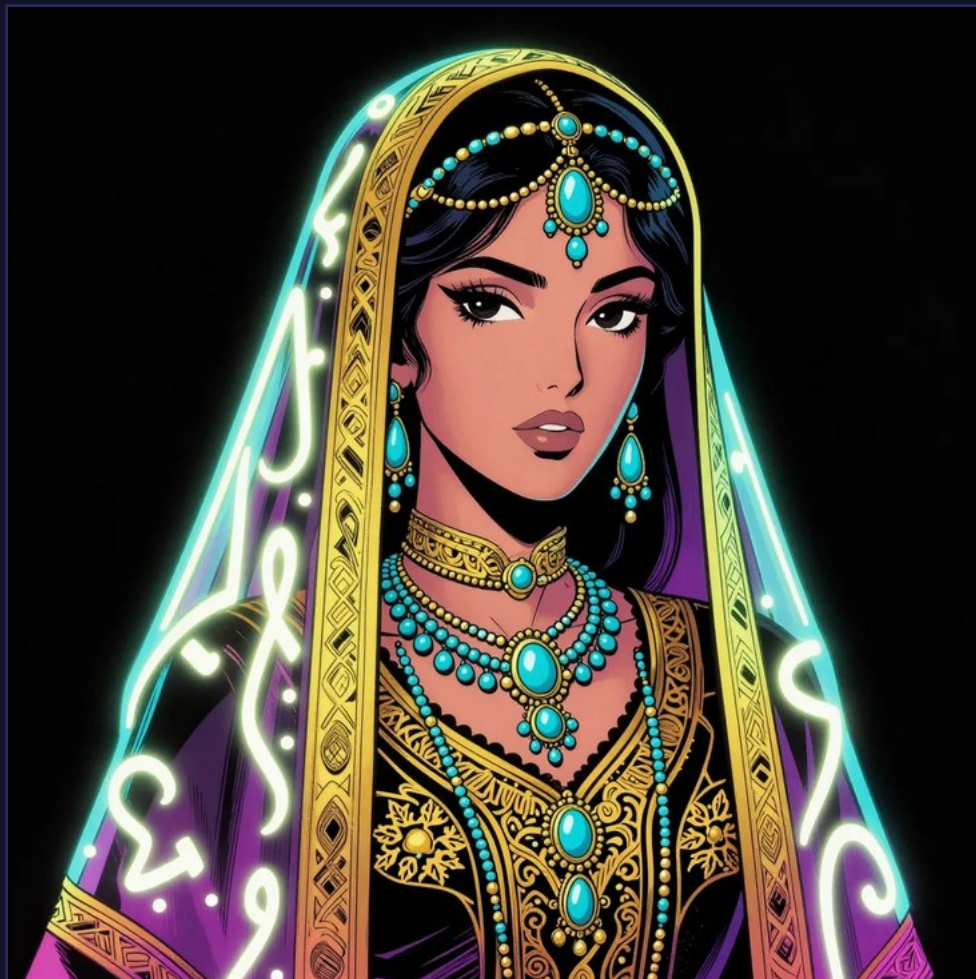

16 Urucum Light

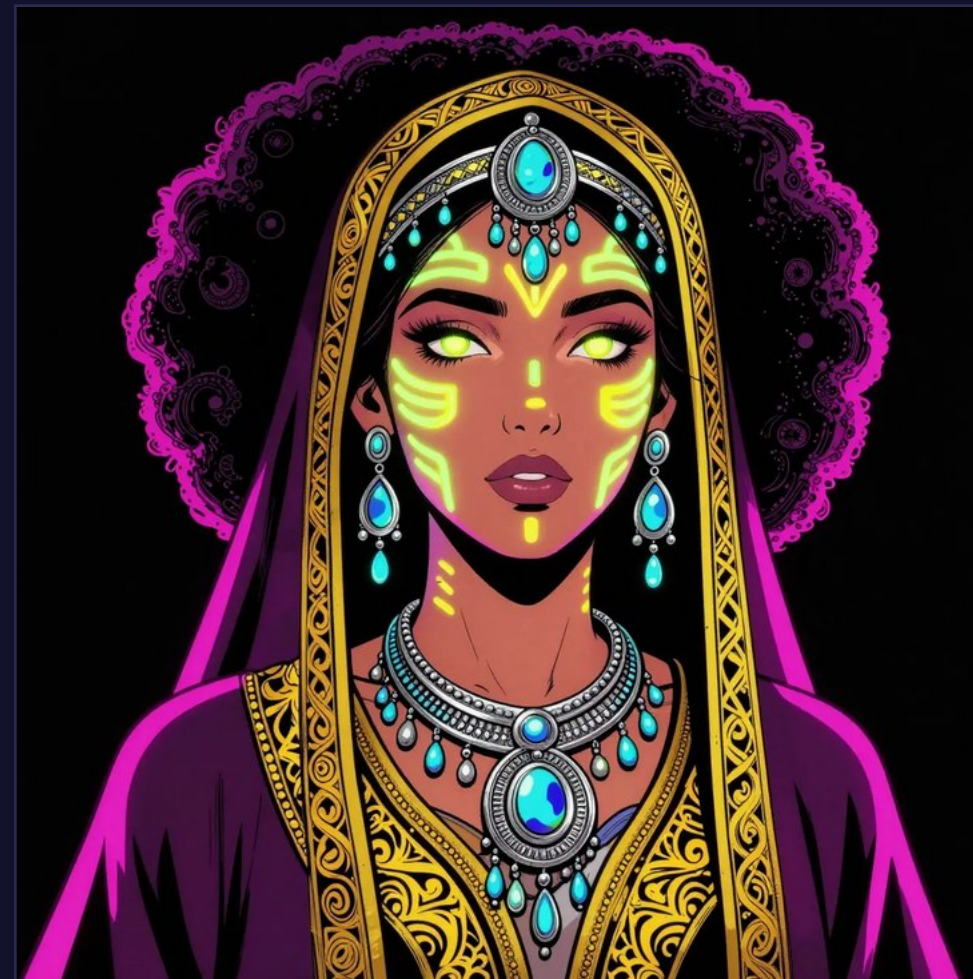

17 Luminous Hanbok

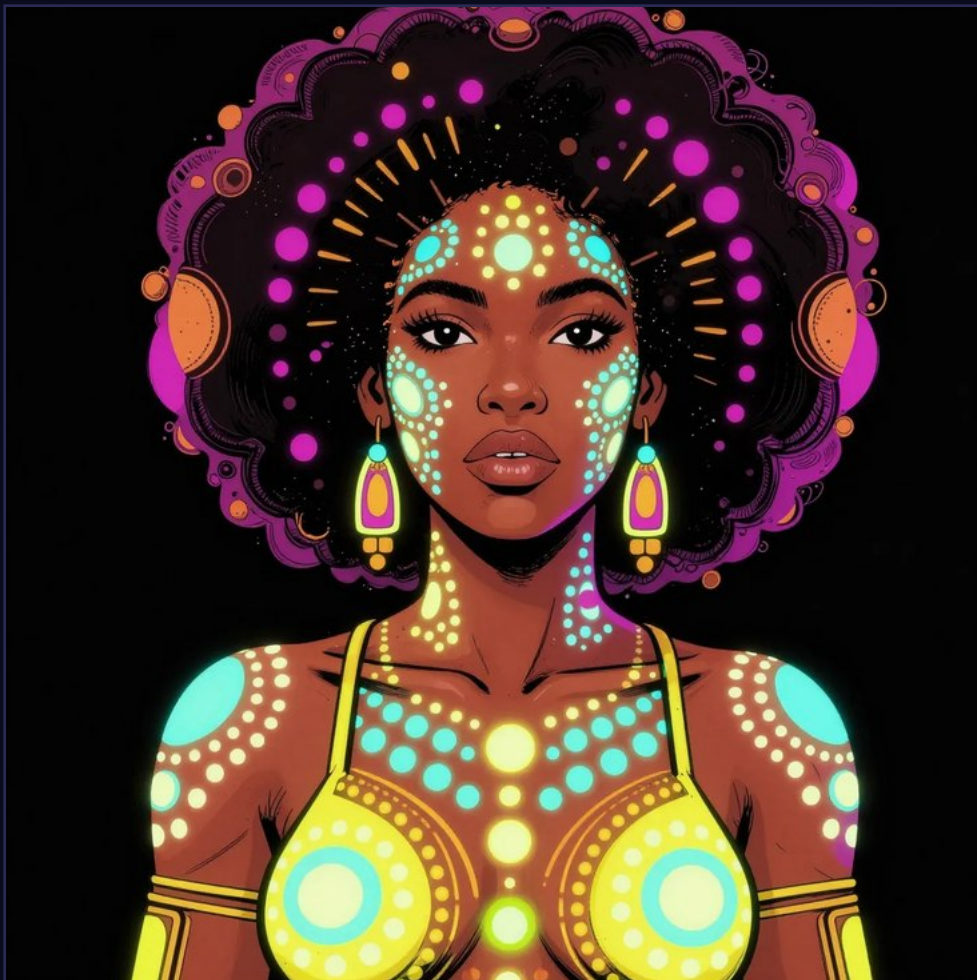

18 Baybayin Sun

19 The Calligraphy Veil

20 Silver & Ink

21 Dreaming in Dots

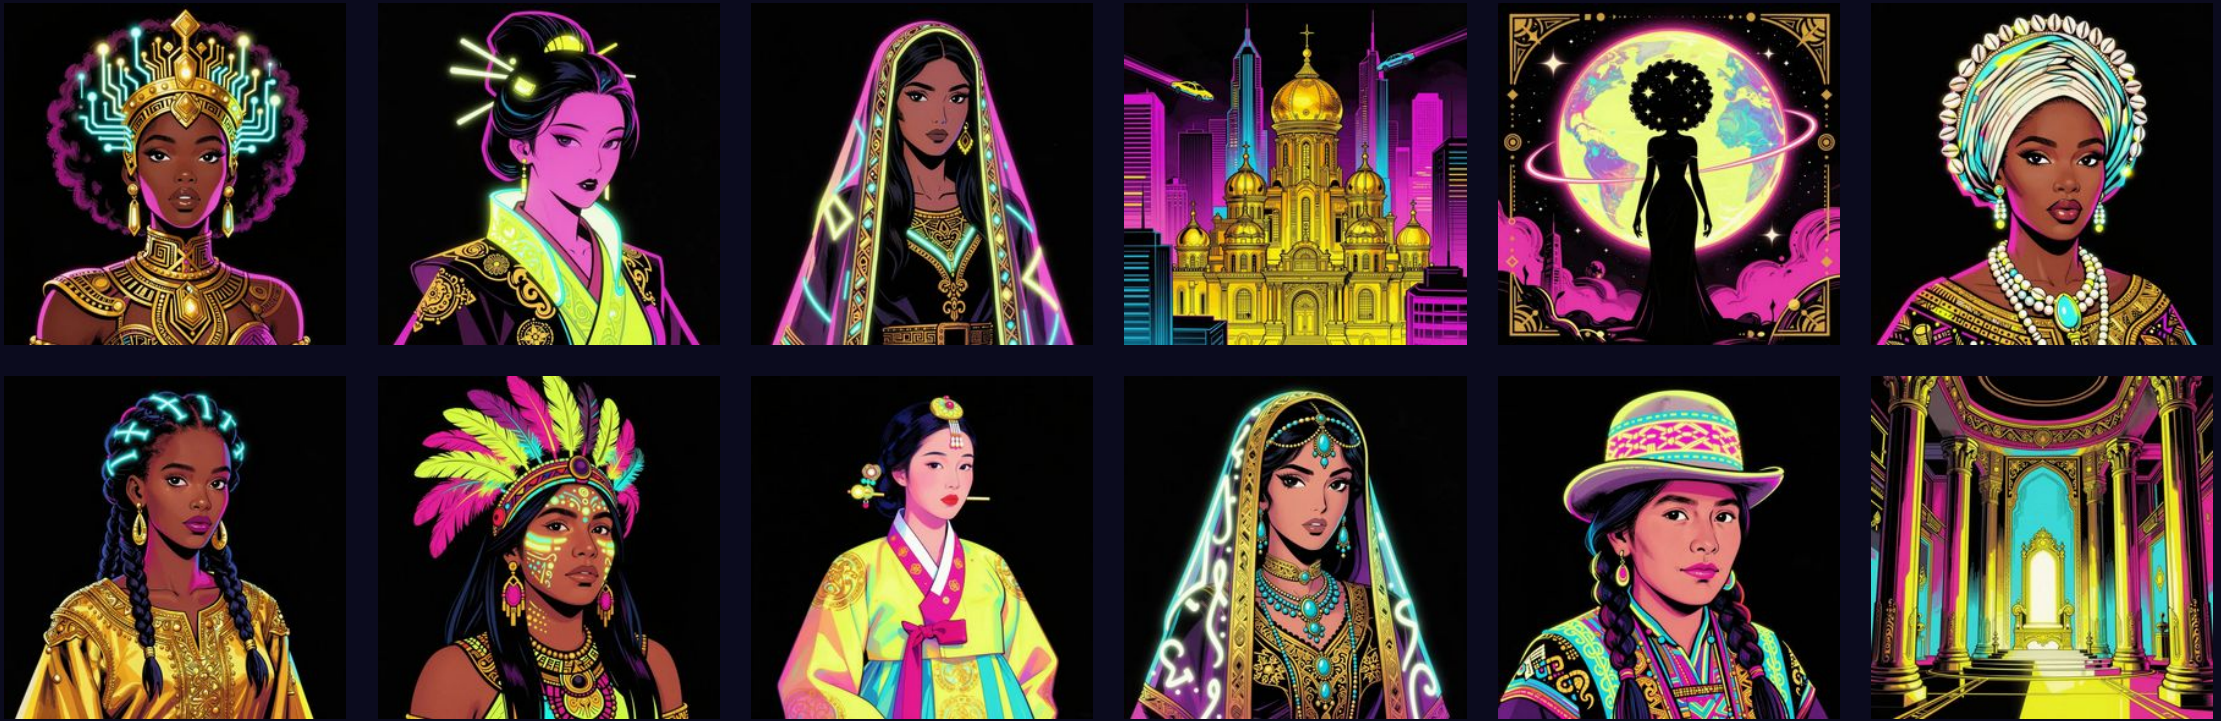

22 Woven Frequencies

23 Throne of Light

24 Moonlit Caravan

Heritage and high technology share the same glow.

View the full series at lolimari.com/art · Collect at fineartsloli.com

lmontalvo@pratt.edu

© 2026 Loli Mari Montalvo — New York · Creative Director · Educator · AI Innovator · Artist